Good for the Environment

Public transportation is a planet-friendly choice, decreasing the number of cars on the road and cutting down harmful emissions, while also reducing traffic congestion and managing parking issues.

Good for People

Public transit offers affordable and accessible rides, and encourages a healthier mode of living. Riders experience an increase in physical activity when walking to and from their stops. Plus, reduced fuel emissions result in cleaner air.

Good for the Community

Public transportation is a powerful engine for economic growth. It keeps our towns and cities moving smoothly by transporting workers, goods, and services. It can help boost local economies by providing access to jobs and housing. And, it can help save money, too!

By commuting via public transit instead of by car, a person can save up to 20 pounds of carbon dioxide emissions every day.

$1 = $5

Every $1 invested in public transportation generates $5 in economic returns.

Public transportation use saves the U.S. the equivalent of more than 11 million gallons of gasoline per day.

Public transportation use saves the equivalent of 300,000 fewer automobile fill-ups every day.
